

Director for Theological Education

Anglican Communion Office

The Anglican Communion Office, based in London is the permanent Secretariat for the Instruments of Communion of the worldwide Anglican Communion. We are seeking to appoint a Director for TEAC (Theological Education across the Anglican Communion) based in London, to help build capacity for the delivery of good quality theological education for the whole people of God across the Anglican Communion. This is a five year project.

Major responsibilities include:

- to develop existing networks through facilitating regional consultations for theological educators;
- to develop existing networks through facilitating tri-annual conferences for Anglican leaders in theological institutions;
- to develop on line and web based networks for the sharing of information and learning resources and manage the existing relevant sections of the Anglican Communion Office website;
- to coordinate the dissemination and sharing of resources for catechesis and the nurture of the whole people of God in their discipleship in the world;
- to coordinate the development of The Anglican Way Signpost series;
- support the work across the Communion on hermeneutics and the development of the materials produced by the Bible in the Life of the Church initiative;
- to oversee the translation of resources into languages of the Anglican Communion beyond English;
- to develop a shared vision for theological education and to encourage a culture of teaching and learning.

It is desirable the successful candidate will:

- have had their work published;
- have an understanding of virtual learning and technology enhanced learning;
- have an awareness of the publishing/editing world in both the North and global South including digital and e-publishing.

Further information is available on our website

<http://www.anglicancommunion.org/structures/secretariat/vacancies.aspx>

The successful candidate will:

- have an understanding of the ecclesiology of the Anglican Communion;
- have extensive experience in theological education at all levels in the Anglican Communion and of working globally and cross-culturally at a senior level. Experience of working in Africa, South America or Asia is particularly desirable;
- have working experience of different approaches to adult education as well as current challenges facing the Church in the area of Christian education;
- have a graduate qualification in theology; an earned doctorate in theology is preferred;
- be able to engage with and have experience of working collaboratively with people from a range of backgrounds and nationalities;
- be able to work independently including the ability to start and successfully complete a major project;
- be confident in working with web-based materials and in the use of IT tools;
- have the ability to communicate ideas through both the written and spoken word and to build capacity in others.

The application should include a CV a covering letter and the names of at least three referees.

This senior position will be remunerated at £50k to £55k per annum plus benefits; reasonable relocation expenses may be paid.

The last day for applications is 10 August 2017; interviews are likely to take place on 16 August by conference call and second interviews on 29 September in London.

Applications should be sent to: applications@anglicancommunion.org